HAIL TO THE CHIEF

TO THE MEN OF THE CLASS OF JUNE 1941:

I understand that the theme of your "Clintonian" is Music. Now, music—one of the greatest of the arts which man has evolved—possesses a strong aesthetic appeal to nearly all of us. However, the same music does not make its appeal to all. The savage in the jungle responds emotionally to the rhythmic beating of his tom-tom. At the other end of the social scale, the cultured person delights only in the harmonies of the great composers. Somewhere between the two, there is a vast field of folk music, which has motivated peoples all over the world to determine in no small degree the type of civilization which they desire. While music itself is an art, it has a firm basis in scientific principles; namely, the immutable laws of Physics.

As you leave DeWitt Clinton High School, it is our hope that in your lives there will always be music to charm you and to enchant your ears, music of a high order of merit, that will make for you so strong an appeal that you will find introduced into your lives beauty and other aesthetic qualities. But just as music itself is based on sound scientific principles, so your lives, if they are to be full and complete, must be based upon sound ethical principles. It is our fondest hope that the years you have spent in Clinton have helped you to develop ethical concepts to such a degree that you are not only willing but eager to build your lives around them. They should be your firm foundation, and we trust that they are.

Wherever you go and whatever you do, may happiness be your lot!

WE THREE

MR. FRANK BOYLAN—In spite of the strict disciplinary nature of his regular duties, he has endeared himself to the student body by his ready smile and quick wit. As Assistant to the Principal, Mr. Boylan's actions have always been governed by his desire to build a better Clinton.

MRS. ANTOINETTE HERRMANN—Charming and industrious Dean of the Honor School, she supervises the courses and offers kind counsel to the students of high scholarship. Under her guidance, the Honor School is no longer in the experimental stage; it has become an integral, successful part of Clinton.

MR. WILLIAM P. ZINGARO—Energetic, versatile, and efficient, he has earned the respect and confidence of the student body many times over. Serving as Administrative Assistant, Mr. Zingaro has had the opportunity to study—and to cooperate with—the needs of the average Clintonite.

OVERTURE

We are living in a paradoxical era. There is plenty and there is famine; there is despondency and there is hope; there is the sun of democracy and there are the clouds of totalitarianism; there is the song of life and there is the symphony of death . . .

To provide a more pleasant and appealing atmosphere, the Clintonian—your index of four momentous years—has chosen music as its theme. It is our profound hope that it will prove itself a satisfactory medium through which we may escape from worldly reality into the realm of happy memories of the past.

To thee forever, our fondest love.

YOU'RE IN THE

A blood-curdling, rip-snorting, rib-tickling drama of today—in two delicious scenes. . . .

(Scene I: Local Draft Headquarters 7,234. Several prominent—and a few puny—members of the DeWitt Clinton faculty are nervously awaiting their physical exams. Each character bears upon his face the look of a martyr—they are about to make the supreme sacrifice for their country.)

(Into the room swaggers Mr. J. Roland Gallo, handsomest.)

Mr. Gallo: I say there, I wonder if those military hats will show off my features to best advantage?

Mr. Israel Schuldenfrei, best dressed: Come now, it's not the clothes that make the man; it's how he wears them.

Mr. William Lichtenstein, most industrious: They're worried about clothes. What I want to know is whether it's true—about peeling potatoes.

Mr. Effingham Murray, hardest worker: My gosh! Most of you haven't worked in years.

Mr. Emanuel Weiss, fewest tests: I wonder how often they inspect uniforms. . . . In Clinton, one test a term showed me the slackers.

Miss Claire Brenner, most tests: One test? What any large body needs is obedience . . . at least two inspections per day.

(Enter Mr. Max Nadel, most cooperative.)

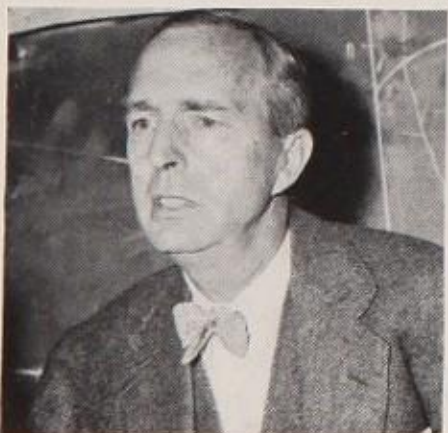

Mr. Nadel: Don't worry, folks . . . everything will work out O.K., after all, it's for a great cause.

Mr. Archie Isaacs, wittiest: Did you say course?

Mr. Nadel: No . . . cause.

Mr. Isaacs: Oh! I thought you said course . . . incidentally, what does the army give us to eat?

Dean Aaron Cohen, most popular: Someone in the army told me that a typical dinner consists of veal, mushroom dumplings, fried egg-plant, Indian pudding, melba toast. . . .

ARMY NOW . . . MAYBE

Mr. Isaacs: Wow! That's better than the teachers' lunchroom . . . and free too. (To a passerby) You know I should be deferred. I have 183 boys in Clinton depending upon me . . . for homework and 600 for admits.

(Enter Mr. Sidney Neuman, most versatile.)

Mr. Neuman: I don't know whether to join the air, infantry or tank corps.

Dean Edmund Foote, best natured: Join the infantry. After all these years of pleasant contemplation sitting in a chair, we could use the exercise and—

(Draft board official enters and interrupts.)

Official: I have good news for Mrs. Muriel Lass, prettiest, and Miss Lillian Wilson, best dressed. At first, we thought the army had no place for women. However, after some vigorous protesting, seventy-three letters to Washington, and a national referendum, we decided that Mrs. Lass will become the sweetheart of Company C and that Miss Wilson will pose for enlistment posters beside Uncle Sam. . . .

Miss Clair Brenner, most tests: And what about me?

Official: Oh, yes! In view of your experience at Fort Clinton, we'll put you in charge of daily inspection at Camp Dix. (Orderly enters and hands message to Official.) What's this? (He reads.) It has been decided that "Doc" Irwin Guernsey, most beloved, will be deferred because his induction might break the hearts of seven thousand Clintonites. . . .

(As the curtain falls, the faculty is lining up in front of the Doctor's office for physical examinations.)

(Scene 2: Later the same day in front of DeWitt Clinton High School. Fourteen members of Clinton's faculty are returning home amid rousing cheers.)

Student: Why are they back? Has a year passed so soon?

Entire faculty: No! We all flunked the physical exam . . . FLAT FEET.

THANKS FOR THE MEMORIES

The shrill ring of the alarm clock broke cruelly into the sweet dreams of Hamlet Horowitz. His eyelids quivered, winked open. With a gurgle, Hamlet leaped into the cold air. Today was September 13, 1937, the day of days—his first day in high school. He couldn't afford to be late!

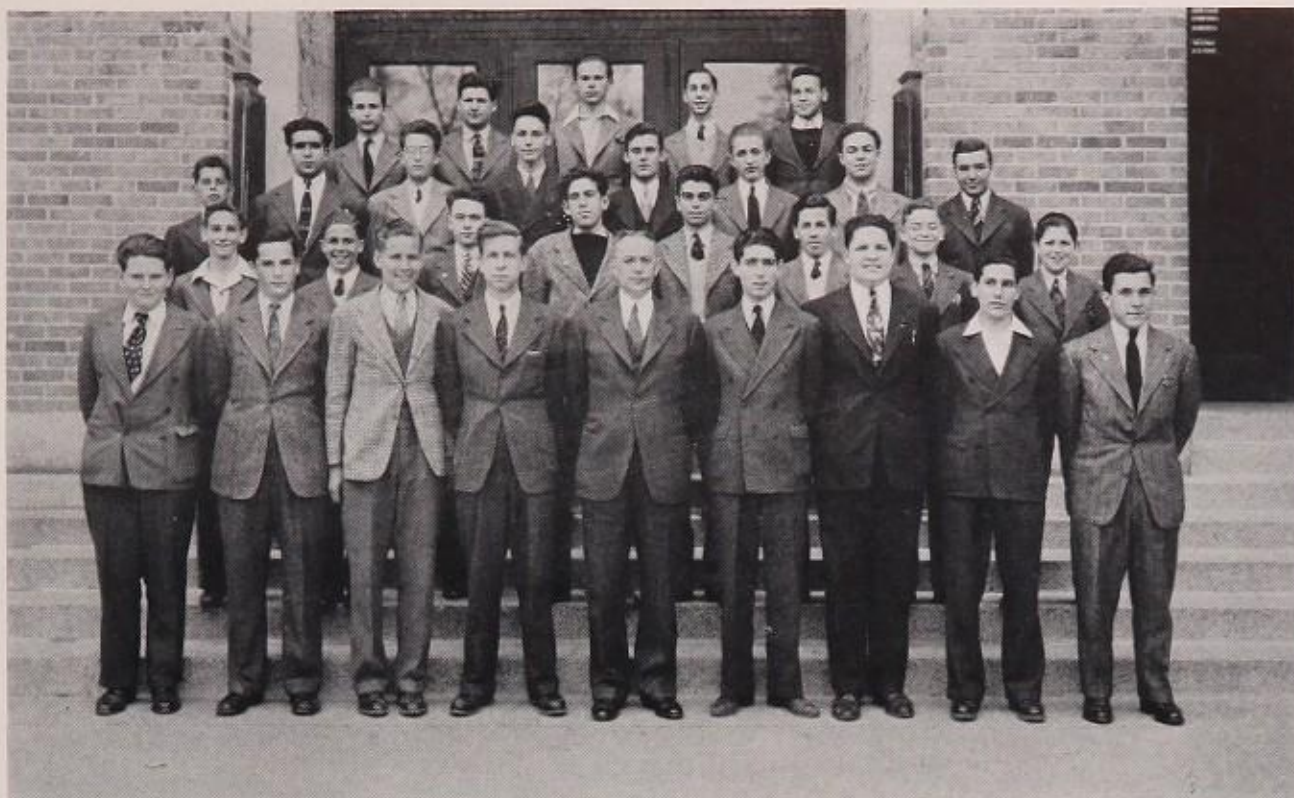

At 7:32 a.m. Hamlet stepped through the portals of DeWitt Clinton High School. On reaching his assigned room, he timidly poked his head through the door. As no one hit him, he brought the rest of his body in with him. An important looking personage at the front of the room handed him a more important looking document—known familiarly as a Program Slip. As far as Hamlet was concerned, it might have been a map of Asia—he just couldn't decipher the thing! Finally, with the help of twenty of his classmates, Hamlet discovered that he had no lunch period. He waved a grimy hand in the teacher's face. . . . "You'll have to see your floor chairman in the Program Room," she said. "Walk three flights down, go through the underpass and . . ." Hamlet was lost for three periods. . . .

When they found him, Hamlet was glassy-eyed and muttering:—

Quien sabe? Qui sait?
Ich weiss nicht! All day!
Mix it with sodium!
Get off that podium!
Remember your sciences
And Europe's alliances,
Mister Scudder's singing,
Lunch-room siren ringing,
Crowded hallways—crowded stairs,
That squadman who always glares,
Teachers roaring,
Pupils snoring . . .
That's Clinton!

Hamlet's first term in Clinton sped quickly by. It was the term when: Clinton lost its 77 Street Annex; the Red and Black Steamroller captained by Shorty Consagra had only one brief taste of victory—over Commerce. It was Clinton's fortieth anniversary . . . dancing in the gyms . . . special issues of the "News" and the "Magpie" . . . congratulatory messages from the Mayor and from the Governor. . . .

1938 . . . Spring: Another look at his report card convinced Hamlet Horowitz that he was really in second term. No longer was his life in Clinton chaotic; it had fallen into an orderly pattern. Hamlet found time to try out for the Red and Black five. . . . We don't know whether there was any connection between this and the fact that Clinton won only one P.S.A.L. game that season. Discouraged no end, Hamlet entered his heart throb's picture in the "News" Pretty Girl Contest and she . . . well, your girl isn't so good either. . . . That same term, Mosholu's netmen won the Bronx crown.

1938 . . . Fall: Since the Board of Education needed a building to house the newly formed Bronx High School of Science, it shipped the 184 Street Annexites here. . . . Poor Hamlet had to stand in three of his classes, but what did he care? Wasn't the football team, directed by the newly appointed Coach Jacobson, finishing its season with only one loss—the Washington fray? That term, Hamlet had an opportunity to "swing it" at a series of dances sponsored by the P.T.A. in the Clinton gym. . . .

1939 . . . Spring: Hamlet was startled by a dynamic G.O. membership campaign. Mr. Gallo's agents went so far as to wander through the corridors singing:

"In the class, in the halls,
On the street someone calls:
Stop! Whoever you may be,

In order to offset past losses, the General Organization abolished the G.O. card and issued a booklet full of delectable deductions. Price? Only forty cents—an increase of ten cents. In the same term: The Basketball team finished second in the Bronx division; the World's Fair opened at reduced prices for Clintonites; the Sixth Form set a precedent with a prom of its own; the Tennis Team took home the City Championship; Clintonites were engrossed in a series of Tolerance Assemblies. . . .

1939 . . . Fall: Hamlet Horowitz has been in Clinton for two years and for two years something has been bothering him: there was something missing in Clinton, but what it was he did not know. Then one day, as the train pulled into the Kingsbridge Station, he had it! There were no girls in Clinton. "This cannot be," said Hamlet, so the next day all over the school there appeared posters with the startling demand: "Make Clinton Co-ed!" . . . The cry didn't last very long, but it showed that Horowitz was a pioneer, destined for big things.

That term marked Principal Clark's tenth anniversary in Clinton. . . . Led by Captain Vinnie Pesature, the Red and Black eleven won the mythical Bronx football crown. . . .

1940 . . . Spring: "I'll Never Smile Again" was Number One on the "Hit Parade," but, as far as Hamlet was concerned, things were running smoothly. True, France and the Low Countries were falling, but weren't the Brooklyn Dodgers running second in the Pennant Race? Wasn't the basketball team taking another Bronx P.S.A.L. championship? . . . That same term: Hamlet was present at the first annual Clinton Nite. There was dancing in the gyms, comedy in the auditorium, more cash in the Faculty Memorial Fund, and joy in every heart . . . Clintonites were attending Peace Assemblies. . . . The convention system for selecting school officers was abandoned in favor of direct elections. . . . Mosholu's tracksters wore the Bronx crown and took second place in the City Championship Meet. . . .

1940 . . . Fall: "One more year to go," cried Hamlet, and he didn't know whether to feel happy or not. About this time, Hamlet cast his vote in the "Clinton News" Presidential Poll which accurately forecast Roosevelt's re-election for a third term. . . . Captain Steve Skapenic drove the Steamroller through a season with only two defeats . . . Hamlet was hurt to the quick when Principal Clark announced that in the future the traditional Senior Hat would be abolished. Again, the dynamic power of Hamlet Horowitz was brought into play . . . petitions, posters, rallies, corridor conferences. . . . With his characteristic generosity, Mr. Clark offered a concession: Seniors could have the chapeau if they agreed not to wear it in school or to decorate it ridiculously. . . . The Seventh Form breathed a collective sigh of relief. . . .

1941 . . . Senior Term!: Hamlet was too busy to even congratulate himself. Sure, he was a Senior; did it in four years, too; but the fight wasn't over yet! "Twelve Centuries," the Law of Diminishing Returns, the Subjunctive Mood, and Regents still stood in his way. And there were so many things—so many pleasant things—to keep him from his studies: "The Connecticut Yankee" was presented in the school auditorium during the second annual Clinton Nite. Directed by Mrs. Wincor, and starring Arthur Dunn and Julie Israel, the production sent capacity audiences rolling in the aisles. . . . Clinton's hoopsters won the Bronx crown and advanced to the semi-finals in Madison Square Garden before being defeated by Franklin High. . . . After taking the Dickinson Meet trophy, the tracksters beat all comers for the P.S.A.L. track and field championship. . . . The "April Fooling" issue of the "Clinton News" made its hilarious appearance on April 1. . . .

During the same term: Clinton grieved over the untimely death of Patrick Gallagher, beloved Dean of the P.M. Session. . . . The Physical Training Department inaugurated a giant Intramural Program in order to unearth athletic talent. . . . Mr. J. Roland Gallo, honorary president of the G.O., was called into the army by duty and the Selective Service Act . . . Mr. Feibusch took his place as director of the General Organization. . . .

Now, Hamlet Horowitz is marching down the auditorium aisle toward his diploma. A million and one thoughts flash through his mind . . . Did four years pass so quickly? . . . Am I the same boy who entered this school four years ago? . . . Those Regents weren't so tough . . . Am I happy? . . . Am I sad? . . . Will I succeed in life? . . .

Farewell, DeWitt Clinton High School . . . and thanks for the memories. . . .

Roll Out the Barrel of "Service, Character, and Scholarship," and you have Arista—Clinton's honor society. Guided by its dean, "Doc" Guernsey, and captained by Joshua Okun, Elmer Pader, and Seymour Zubkoff, Arista does more than offer recognition of merit; by aiding the individual student, it plays a huge part in making a better Clinton.

The Help Class Committee and the Student Advisory Committee are important Arista agencies for student aid. Directed by Norman Lazar and Sigmund Groch, bi-weekly help classes were conducted for students who needed assistance in the sciences, foreign languages, and mathematics. As a result of instruction received in these classes, a failing Clintonite was almost invariably converted into a passing one.

Under the leadership of Bernard Raider and Gus Sirot, the Student Advisory Committee performed an invaluable service. Using the experience they had gained from their years in Clinton, members of this committee canvassed each freshman section, proffered advice, and answered the queries of the newcomers.

In a lighter vein comes the work of Myron Wander's Entertainment Committee. Besides the semi-annual Walton Dance, Arista enjoyed a boat ride to Indian Point. After all, even Arista men must have diversions!

Conspicuous service, inconspicuously rendered—that's Arista.

ARISTA

UNFINISHED SYMPHONY

Four thousand, five hundred and sixty-five votes—more than the sum total of all Republican votes cast in the states of Louisiana, Mississippi, and South Carolina in the last presidential election—went to Clinton's polls. When the pencil scratches and chalk dust had cleared away, Clinton found that it had elected Saby Jaffe G.O. President, Stanley Spector, Vice-President, and Victor Rosenblum, Secretary. Irving Jaffe and Alan Hahn were chosen as student representatives in the Board of Governors to assist Principal Clark, Mr. Feibusch, and "Doc" Kwit—the faculty members of the board.

The jubilant cries of successful office seekers had hardly died away when the first week of February brought a vehement G.O. booklet sales offensive. Thus, more than forty-five hundred Clintonites were subjected to a painless extraction of forty cents. It was, however, a necessary extraction which was utilized to insure ever-expanding extra-curricular activities—the backbone of Clinton life.

So impressive was the list of discounts, reductions, and bargains offered that it caused the "News" to editorialize—not on spending—but on saving forty cents by joining the G.O. Attractive booster buttons, a free subscription to the "News," and reductions for basketball games, theatres, and museums were only a few advantages that G.O. membership procured. The General Organization also sponsored an immense intramural program, a presentation of the National League's baseball film, "Winning Baseball," and a gigantic club carnival.

After serving Clinton as Honorary President of the General Organization for four years, Mr. J. Roland Gallo took on a new job—at twenty-one dollars a month for Uncle Sam. Reliable sources disclose that Mr. Gallo still wears his G.O. button—it goes well with a khaki uniform. The General Organization lost a true friend and a conscientious adviser in Mr. Gallo. Fortunately, Mr. Abraham Feibusch, formerly in charge of the P. T. A. and an enthusiastic protagonist of extra-curricular activities, was on hand to assume the honorary presidency.

The history of your General Organization in the 1941 spring term was one of earnest effort on the part of the officers and harmonious collaboration by the student body to make a full and a happy term for each and every Clintonite. General Organizations come and go; the symphony of education surges on and ahead. But the human mind, and certainly the minds of Clinton students, are insatiable, craving progress, and still more progress. Thus each General Organization is an unfinished symphony that will continue as long as there is a demand for more education in Clinton.

PLAYMATES

CLINTON RHAPSODY

And when the teacher's words
Come floating toward me,
I don't hear a word at all;
I'm sleeping silently.

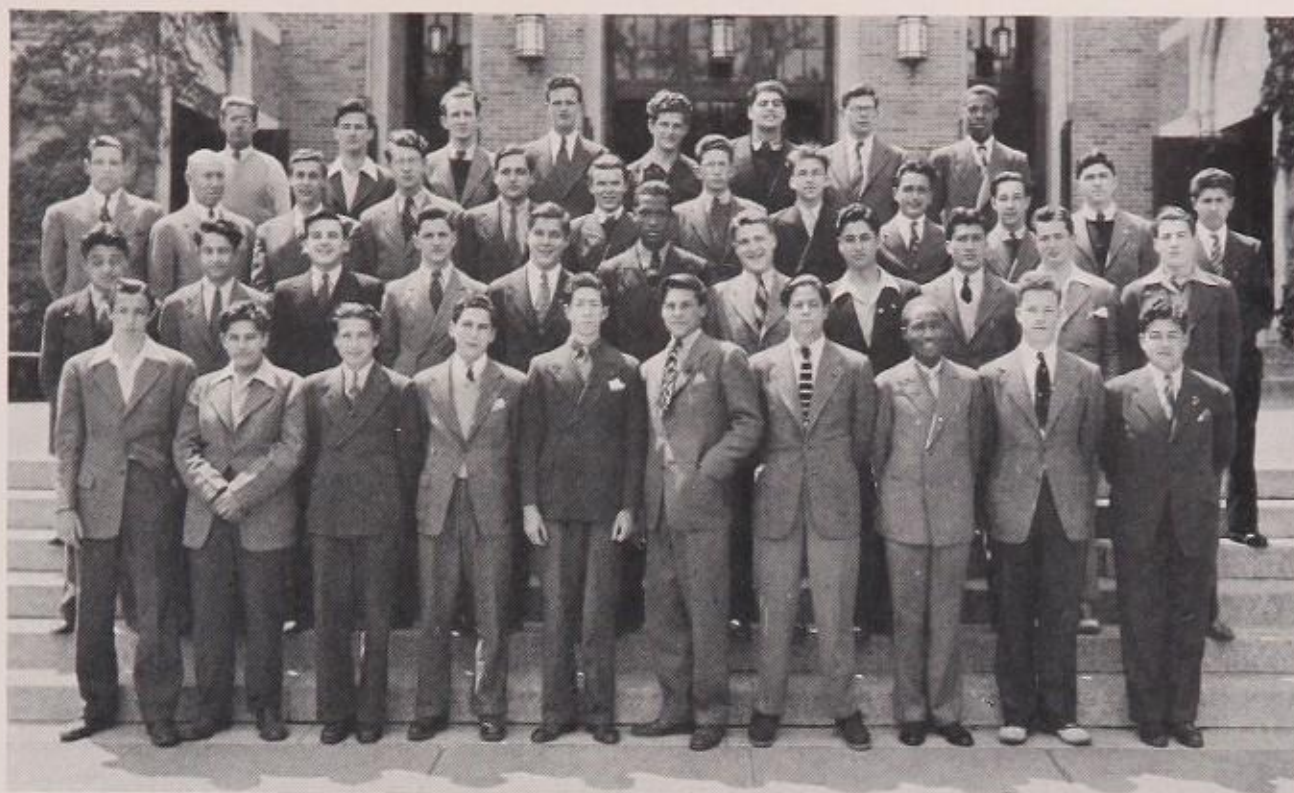

And when I hear that bell
Just ringing for me,
I don't hear a bell at all;
I sense my liberty.

Figure this one out—if you can: According to their program cards, both Joe and Sam finished their school day after the seventh period. At the sound of the bell each day, Joe rushed home to his studies, while Sam almost invariably stayed after school to attend a meeting of the Stamp Club or to run in the Intramurals. When the Senior averages were posted, Joe was able to boast of an eighty-seven average; Sam wasn't particularly proud of his eighty-three. . . . The question is: who got the most out of his four years in Clinton—Joe or Sam? . . . Strange as it may seem, Sam's the one. You see, Sam realized the importance of Clinton's clubs and squads.

To those of us like Sam, Clinton has offered innumerable fun-giving and educational extra-curricular activities. Clintonites artistically inclined have had the opportunity to draw Deep Purple to their heart's content in the Art Club; budding air-pilots have flown through the air vicariously with the Aero Club; such clubs as the Causons Society, Cercle Francais, Pan-American Club, Spanish Club, Alt Heidelberg, Latin Club, and Italian Club, brought the culture of distant lands closer to Home Sweet Home; the Rod and Gun Club taught its members to catch the Little Red Fox and the Three Little Fishes.

A better, more tolerant America is the hope of every Clintonite. That's why the American Club, Douglass Society, Newman Club, Shofar Society, The American Student Union, Town Hall Club, and the History

CHORUS

Honor Society hung out the SRO sign soon after each of their meetings began.

Besides being a source of entertainment, clubs have been—and always will be—a vital factor in determining the Clintonites' future profession. Prospective medicos have gotten a head start by joining the First Aid Club and the Medical Society. For those interested in science there was an impressive array of clubs: Alchemists, Bio Club, Chem Club, Micro-Biology Club, and the Nature Study Club—to mention a few. Potential lawyers had the Law Society and its Student Court for a training ground, while the Clinton Cameramen, Photo Bulletin, and M.Q. Photo Club claimed swarms of shutterbugs. Many of the music makers of tomorrow were first in the groove for Clinton's Chorus, Band, Orchestra, and Harmonica Club.

Hokus-pokus fans flocked to the Magic Circle; masters of the logarithm descended upon the Math Team. Mosholu's great thinkers pushed pawns for the Chess Club; philatelists showed their wares in the Stamp Club.

If you travel from the heights of Blueberry Hill to the depths of the Blue Danube, you'll not find a club system surpassing Clinton's in quality or quantity.

I GIVE YOU MY WORD . . .

As the Wednesday sun goes down every other week, some five or six Bellevue candidates step out of a dingy print shop, stagger home, and pass into a semi-coma of nervous exhaustion. The Managing Board has just put the "Clinton News" to "bed."

While Editor Howard Samuely supervises the general make-up and policy of each of its seven issues, News Editor Charles Silberman and Staff Editor Ray Falk threaten wayward staffmen into obeying deadlines. Features Editor Sam Levow and Page Four Editor Bob Goldman seem to take fiendish pleasure berating columnists: Al Greenberg, Literary; Hy Farber, Gossiper; Eugene Parks, Faculty; Murray Held, Exchanges; Henry Paley, Alumni. Once copy was written, Headlines Editor Lionel Dinkowitz went to work with unit counts, split infinitives, and active verbs. . . .

→ Under the guiding light of Editor Richard Avedon, this term's "Magpie" met with unprecedented success. More than 3,000 Clintonites shelled out their two-bits for the magazine, and who can blame them? It was a lively issue devoted to light, humorous literature and to colorful artwork. . . .

In the years to come, many an erstwhile Senior will seek to relive "the days when . . ." It is for this purpose that the "Clintonian" is published for the graduating class: to preserve an accurate history of Clinton life—activities, classmates, teachers—in print. The June 1941 edition was edited by Hy Farber and Ernest Field with the aid of Managing Editor Daniel Appel.

SENIORS

THERE I GO . . .

Last June, twelve hundred Clintonites took a lingering look at their report cards and "heard a rhapsody"; last September, twelve hundred Clintonites returned from their vacations and noticed that little freshmen followed them with awed eyes. Although some saboteurs persisted in calling them "Sevens," for all intents and purposes a new and mightier Senior Class had taken possession of Clinton.

Guided by Mr. Max Nadel, the Class of June 1941 set out to make its last year in Clinton worth remembering. The lower Seniors took the first step in this direction when they elected Irv Jaffe, Ernie Swimmer, and Danny Matusow president, vice-president, and secretary, respectively. For the first time in Clinton's history, the "Sevens" had a democratically elected council to supervise the activities of the form.

And of activities there were plenty! A record-breaking sale of eight hundred attractive pins indicates just how well the Pin Committee did its job. A talented and spirited Seventh Form Basketball Team made its appearance in the Gym. With Band Leader Blue Barron, Hollywood's Patricia Ellis, and vocalist Russ Carlyle as guest stars, the Prom proved to be a memorable affair.

SENIOR

SENIOR FINANCE COMMITTEE

Although General Regents and his aid, Report Cards, waged a furious January battle to clip off a few of its numbers, the Class of June 1941 started one morning in February on the last leg of its four year journey. Dean Aaron Cohen took over where Mr. Nadel left off, while Dave Fanshel, Irv Jaffe, and Joe Bennett were installed as new Senior officers.

In order to successfully administer the affairs of the Senior Class, the following were put in charge of operations: Ernest Swimmer and Dan Matusow, hat; Elmer Pader and Seymour Zubkoff, finance; Irv Jaffe, prom; Ernest Field and Hy Farber, Clintonian; Alan Hahn and Sid Schmukler, athletics; Gerry Wolf, Class Nite; Harold Joachim, college; Joe Bennett, memorial; Harold Caplin, pin.

When graduation rolled around, these committee chairmen were able to look back with pride at the work they had accomplished. The choice of the Hat Committee, a flaming red corduroy pork pie, was popular and well received. The Finance Committee took charge of all monetary affairs and efficiently balanced the Senior Budget. "Senior Chatter" was successfully published. The Athletic Committee occupied itself with a winning basketball five. Besides the official hat, the Seniors wore neat, gold-plated insignias—the work of the Pin Committee.

For four years they had looked forward to June 1941, and the Seniors certainly weren't disappointed when it came. During this month three significant events took place: the Prom, Class Nite, and finally Graduation. 'Nough said if we say they were wonderful, hilarious, and saddening, respectively.

JAMES DESPOSITO

*The mayor of Clinton
Robert Cohen*

It as a strange quirk of fate that brought a Connecticut Yankee of the Twentieth Century to King Arthur's Court in the Sixth Century. It was even more bizarre when an eclipse of the sun saved his life from the wrath of the superstitious knights. But the crowd of 3000 loved it—they gobbled it up, and put $1233 into the Faculty Memorial Fund. The hearts of the spectators melted before the allure of the "actresses," the wonderful humor, and the superb acting of the cast which included Arthur Dunn as the Yankee, Julie Israel as Alisande La Carteloise, Frank Corsaro as Merlin, Alfred Goldfinger as King Arthur, Mendy Weisgal as Morgan Le Fay, and Laurence Vide as Sir Kay.

Presented on May 9 and 10, the Fields-Rodgers-Hart hit was directed by Mrs. Mildred Wincor while "Doc" Guernsey handled the business end of the production.

ALL I DESIRE

We, the Class of June 1941, being of sound state of mind and body—in spite of what the draft board says—and realizing that such an opportunity will come but once more in our lifetime—when we die—do hereby make, publish, and declare this to be our Last Will and Testament:

TO MR. MARZ: We leave a slightly used Senior Hat to be worn in school only.

TO THE FRESHMEN: We leave this advice: If a sophomore offers to sell you a gym spot for a quarter, tell him he's a faker . . . any Senior will sell you his for a dime.

TO DEAN FOOTE: We bequeath the task of getting Congress to repeal the Law of Diminishing Returns.

TO THE FACULTY: We leave . . . They've waited four years for this.

TO FUTURE SENIORS: We leave the Walton girls . . . they left us.

TO LOUIE: We bequeath Clinton . . . and, if we know Louie, "There'll Be Some Changes Made."

TO THE PERIOD BELL: We leave our very deepest gratitude.

TO DEAN COHEN: We leave the bare walls of the Eco Office . . . we hocked the furniture to buy prom tickets.

TO MR. PHILIPSON: We leave a back door that won't slam shut with a bang.

TO MR. LICHTENSTEIN: We leave one editor instead of two . . . it will be much easier to teach one editor the why's and wherefore's of the Clintonian budget.

TO "DOC" GUERNSEY: We leave Arista, his history classes, Clinton's athletic teams, and the troubles of five thousand Clintonites . . . that ought to keep him busy.

TO MR. CLARK: We leave our sincere thanks for an education that will better equip us to face the storm of life.

HEAVEN CAN WAIT

Hallelujah! Here it is Judgment Day, and here I am without a good deed to my name. Gee, what will I say . . . what will I do? I've got it, I'll listen to the newly recognized virtues of others, and perhaps I may get some ideas for myself after all . . . That's the Pearly Gate yonder, and what a handsome looking group standing outside of it. St. Peter himself is addressing them, and no wonder, it's the Clinton Senior Celebrities. I think I'll eavesdrop and listen to what they have to say.

". . . And so, I have received your applications to God's kingdom, and upon giving them due consideration, I have summoned you gentlemen here so that I may see you before passing a just verdict," spoke Valhalla's gateman since he had probably begun his oration before my arrival.

"You all know," he continued, "the rules and regulations of heaven—if you are not accepted this time, you may try again in the future. But remember, once in heaven, you must smoke, drink, and beat your wives in moderation; you cannot root for the Brooklyn Dodgers any more—you know why! Most of all, however, you must contribute generously to our sinking fund. The fund goes to fish who are wet behind the gills, and towards the upkeep of Mephistopheles Inn so that we don't become overcrowded.

"I notice that you are growing peeved and uneasy so I had best begin. Dave Fanshel step forward! Our senate and assembly have voted unanimously for you, since you are Most Popular. Let me be the first one to shake your hand and to congratulate you.

"It's a shame that the girls in heaven are so bored . . . Ed Brembs, Most Handsome and Paul Furgatch, Best Dressed: Report to Cupid for bows and arrows at once . . . All right Bennett Spanbock, Class Sharpie, you may join them so stop whining.

"Young man, cease that infernal racket, you bother me . . . Oh, now I see! It's Irvin Dorfman, Most Versatile, serenading an angel while Murray Ackerman, Most Cooperative, is plucking his guitar for him and, Alan Hahn, Hardest Worker, is dusting Irv's suit off, and shining Murray's shoes. Well now pass on, you're all angels now.

"Bernard Sherman, Class Baby, is crying . . . Irving Jaffe, Class Politician, stop kissing him and give me that cigar . . . Daniel Matusow, Best Natured, take the baby under your wing and, you, Ernie Swimmer, Most Inventive, you can make some new-fangled paper dolls for him to play with. Off to the nursery, all of you.

"Gerry Wolf, Most Ambitious, stop fitting Saby Jaffe, The One Who Did The Most For Clinton, and Joshua Okun, Most Likely To Succeed, with wings until they enter my pearly gate—well, if you're so anxious go on and enter.

"So Hy Farber, Class Journalist, I catch you interviewing Rupert Burstan, Most Honored and Tommy Byrnes, Most Unassuming. I suppose it's for the Clinton News. Continue inside, and when you finish, go and interview the guy who wrote this story for the Heaven Herald.

"What an industrious lad Seymour Zubkoff is. He's trying to get Class Artists, Abe Jacobs and Ira Greenblat, to teach him how to draw (a check from a bank), and Class Scientists, Robert Banks and Irv Kramer, to teach him what CaSiO_3 is and why it is. The Heavenly Home is just the place for those youngsters.

"Robert Stein, Spanish Athlete, is at it again . . . this time he's telling Best Athletes, Steve Skapenic and Danny Kraus, about the time when he marched down the field of valor.

"Heaven is getting to be a mighty monotonous place. What with fellows like Elmer Pader who Did The Most For The Senior Class sprouting wings, there's no telling what will happen next.

"Peace and quiet, solitude and tranquillity is all we have in heaven. We need new blood, new vigor, new life. Kenny Goldfarb, Class Pest, perhaps you can liven things up. Howie Goldfluss, Class Wit, proceed with your punning and pranking on the proper side of the Pearly Gate.

"Gabriel is at it again; the harmonious discord of his tin horn is humming, ringing, droning in my ears. Mel Friedman, King of Swing, let out with more of your tantalizing rhythm—get hot! I don't want to hear those harps either—they're much too soft and gentle. Maurice Schermann, Class Jitterbug, your day has arrived—Conga, Lindy, Rhumba to your heart's delight.

"I suppose we'll have to hoist Laurence Vide, Biggest Eater, over the Pearly Gate since we can't fit him through. However, he's incorrigible and will never really curb his appetite."

And so, with a shrug of his shoulders, St. Peter exclaimed that his day's work was over and continued on his way. At last I was alone . . . without wasting any time, I attracted the attention of someone on the inside and pleaded:

So, if you get to heaven
Before I do
Cut a hole in the bottom
An' pull me through
'Cause I ain't gonna grieve
My Lord no more.

LET'S DANCE

Words fail us in describing the scope and grandeur of the Senior Prom. Only by means of the senses can it be done . . . So let's be off . . . We'll taste the food, hear Tommy Dorsey's music, and see the floor show . . . Excuse me a moment while I call for my girl friend . . . "Hello, Hedy . . . ready? . . . good, let's go!" . . . Ah, there's a taxi . . . "Hotel Astor, and make it snappy . . ."

Well, here we are . . . "Hy Sam . . . Hey Danny . . . 'Lo Schwartz . . . Come on Hedy . . ." Never been on the Astor Roof before . . . Gee, this tuck is tight . . .

Boy oh boy! It doesn't seem like two-thirty a.m. already. Well what did we tell you? Didn't we have a swell time? We had a seven course dinner full of Petit Fours and Coup de Refrachis. Then we danced to the syncopation of Tommy Dorsey. And that floor show! Those chorus girls! And I'm sorry I cursed Prom Chairman Irv Jaffe just because our table was behind a pillar.

"Well, good night, Hedy . . ."

LAUGH, CLOWN, LAUGH

"Who was that lady I saw you with last night?"

"That was no lady—that was my wife!"

That was one—and just about the only joke that eleven hundred Seniors did not hear on THE night . . . What night? . . . Say, pal, what were ^{you} doing on the nights of June 6 and 7? Don't tell me that you missed Class Nite 'cause, if you did, pal, you missed SOMETHING!

With Bob Weil, Gerry Wolf, Larry Vide, Howard Goldfluss, and Stan Feiger playing the leads, the comedy, "Have Patience, Doctor," was directed by Mr. Jack Barrack. The plot concerns two mad medicos who are stuck with a non-profit-making sanitarium. An ingenious solution is provided when the doctors decide to hire a gangster to bash the heads of innocent citizens, thereby drumming up business for their hospital. Tunes concocted by Marvin Edelstein were "swung" by Mel Friedman's excellent band, and the sets were designed and built by the Stagecraft Squad. . . .

Oh, you remember it now, huh? Wasn't it swell?

"Calling all cars . . . Calling all cars . . . Proceed at once to DeWitt Clinton High School . . . Investigate the case of Clinton's 'mad dog' . . . He is dangerous, unmerciful . . . Shoot on sight . . ."

When the police arrived, a cordon of steel was placed around the building. The Service League was deputized for a painstaking search through the building . . . A long drawnout, hideous scream announced that the hunters had been successful. They dragged Boris Burpp from his hiding place behind an unused Cafeteria counter . . .

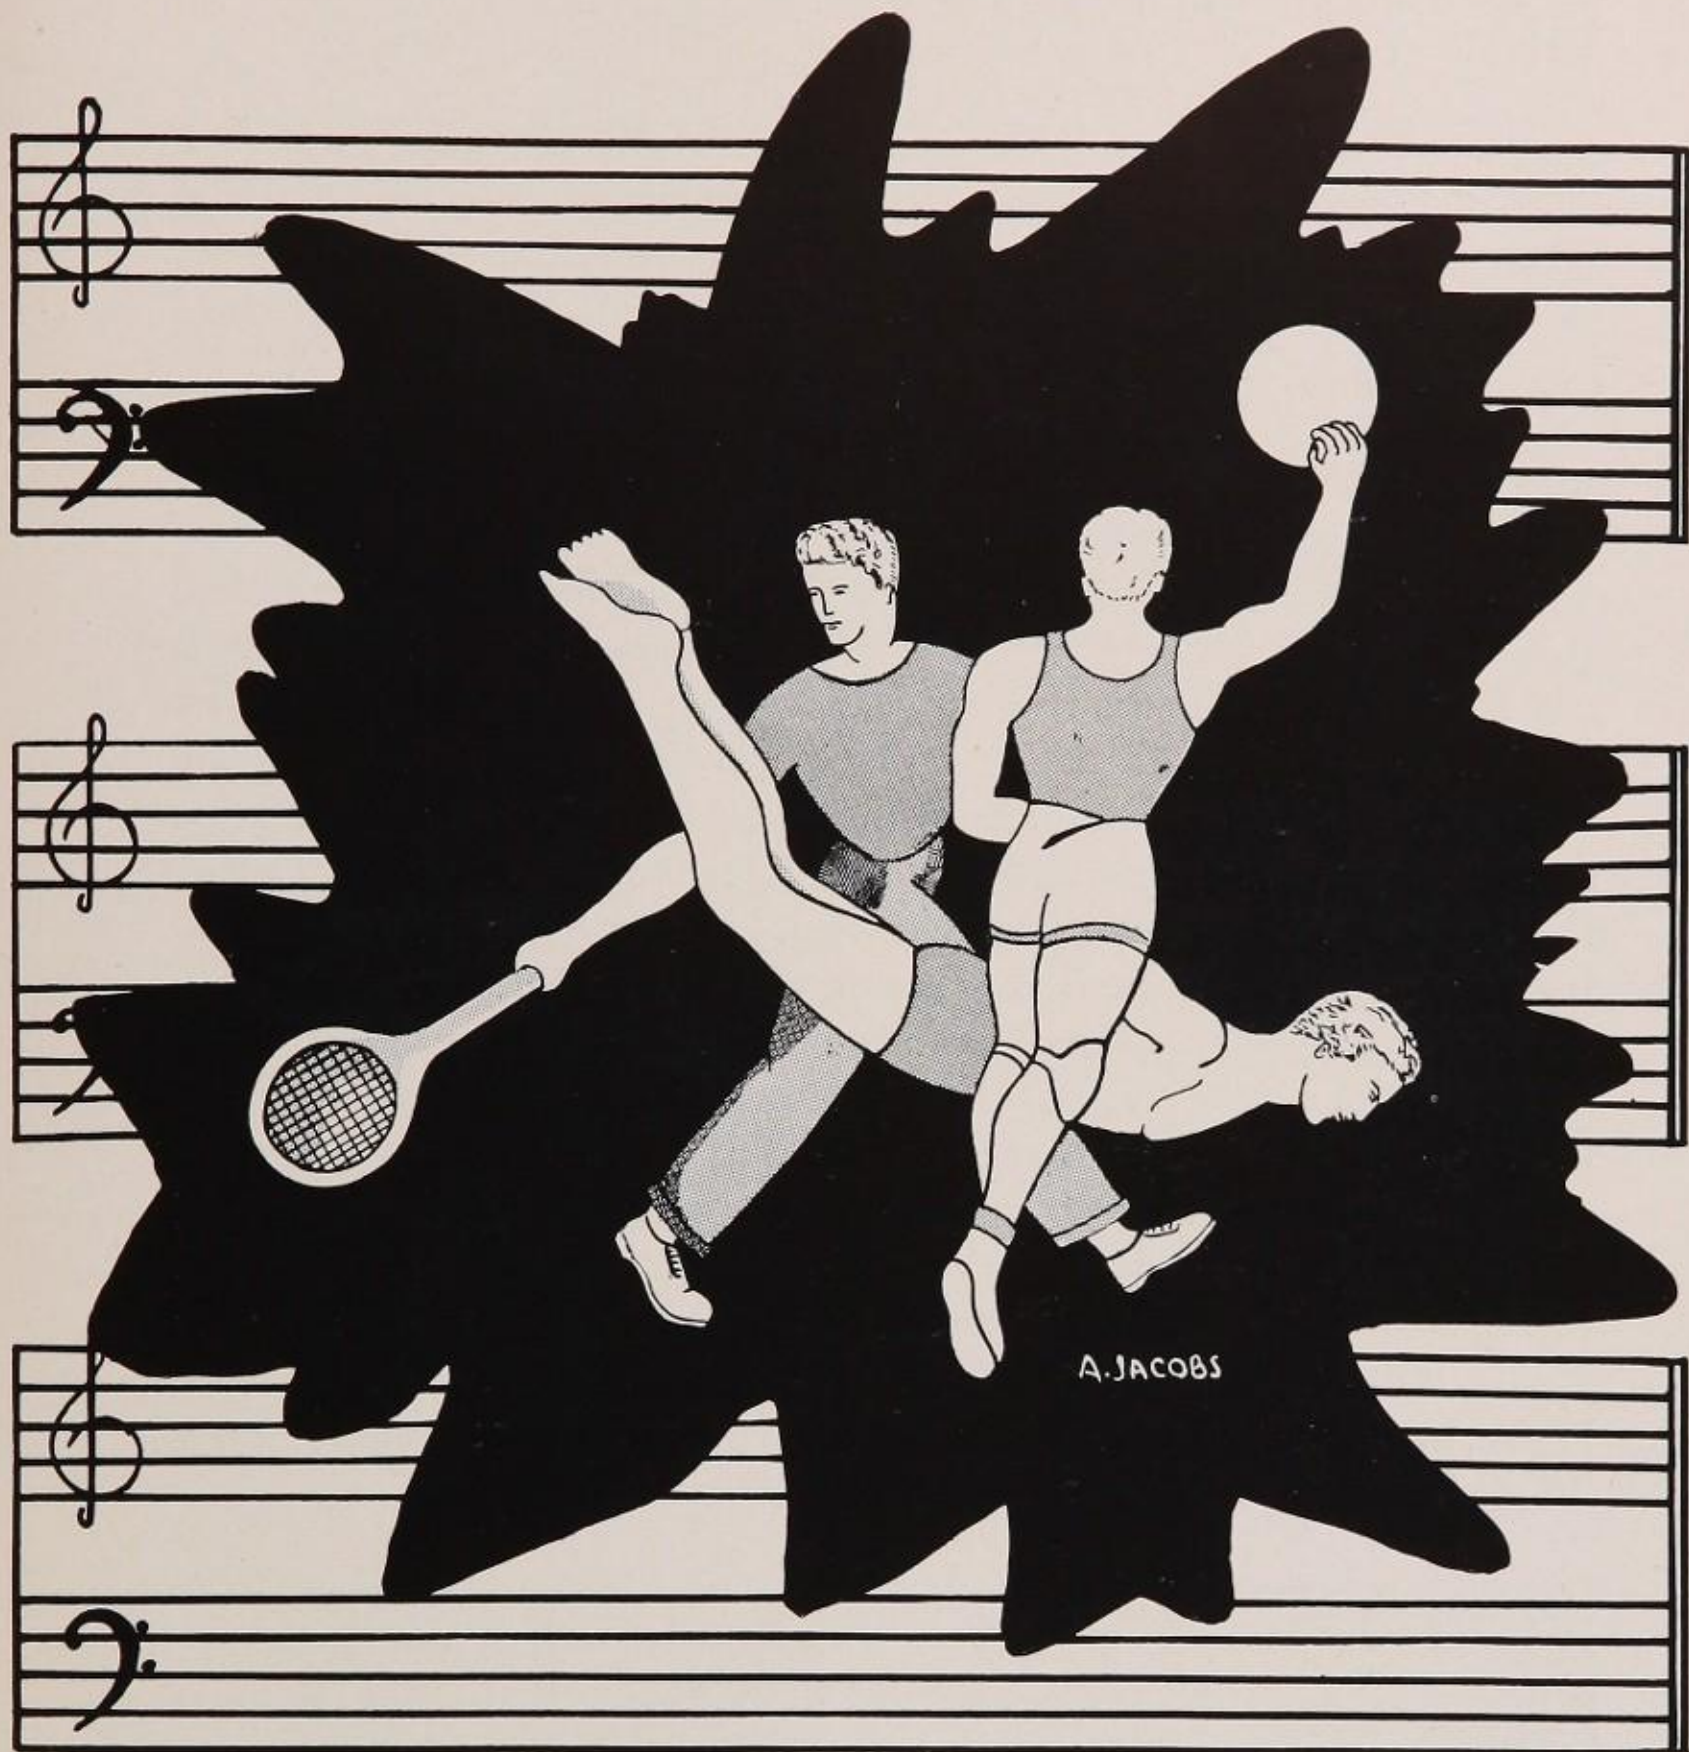

Eight policemen lifted Boris bodily, and, as faculty members shouted, "Lynch him . . . Lynch him!" they carried him to the S. L. Office for questioning.

"Yeah, I did it . . . I did it . . . and I'm glad . . . glad—do you hear?" Boris said passionately. "Four years I waited, slaving over my homework—trying to copy it accurately, cheating, skimping, saving, dying for that one moment." Boris wiped a tear from his eye. "Yeah, the entrée they gave us in Clinton was O.K., but for dessert, what do they give us? Pork pie!" Mounting to his feet, Boris cried: "I had to put my Senior Hat on my head . . . just once . . . just to feel what it felt like . . . there was no premeditation . . . I just did it—no matter what the rule-book says!"

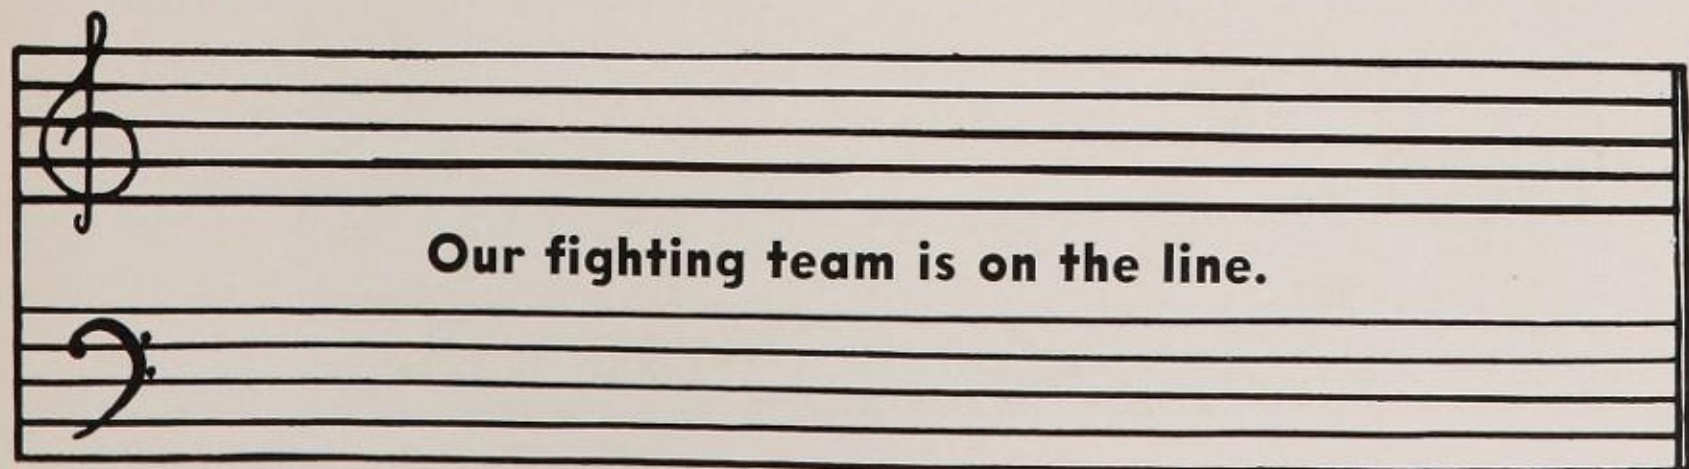

Needless to say, Boris was acquitted when his case came to trial. However, the Chairmen of the Hat Committee, Ernie Swimmer and Danny Matusow, were sentenced to life imprisonment . . .

MARCHING SONG

S P O R T S

ON TO VICTORY

When the curtain fell on the 1940-41 basketball season, one fact stood out in the minds of sports loving Clintonites: rare was the team that could match Mosholu's hoopsters in ability, color, and spirit. Coach Clifford Hurlburt's aggregation not only swept twelve of its thirteen P.S.A.L. games, but also one of the two playoffs for the city title.

Playing coordinated, consistent basketball throughout the regular season, the Hurlburtmen dropped only one contest, a spine-tingler, to Monroe. Since Monroe had suffered a defeat at the hands of the Clinton quintet earlier in the season, the Bronx-Manhattan championship race had to be decided in a rubber game at Madison Square Garden. The Red and Black won, 32-30, in a thrilling game.

The victory put the basketeers in the playoffs at the Garden for the city crown. In the quarter-finals of this elimination tournament, the team routed Curtis to the tune of 38-23. Then, in the semi-finals, pitted against the highly rated Franklin team, the Clinton five proceeded to provide the frenzied spectators with thrill after thrill, as they kept pace with the defending City Champions. Just when it seemed as though Clinton might prevail, a desperate last minute Franklin rally proved too much for the Red and Black, and it went down to defeat, 29-22.

In addition to being an excellent field general, Captain Danny Kraus, "World Telegram" All-Scholastic choice, was both a potent scorer and a veritable stone wall on the defensive. The squad consisted of: Tommy Byrnes, Ed Brembs, Paul Dreska, Normie Schwartz, Morty Fox, Herb Weisman, Arcie DiRoberts, John Sena, Julie Saroff, and Manager Lester Dreyfuss.

BASKETBALL

TRACK TEAM

The Clinton Track Team heralded the beginning of the season by sounding the clarion of victory. At the very first meet, the Dickinson High School Indoor Games, the Mosholu track forces beat forty other schools to win the coveted team trophy.

However, this band of "board pounders" did not stop their victory march after one meet. They went on to win the second—and most important—meet of the indoor season, the City Championship Meet on February 1, in Madison Square Garden. Although the Red and Black took only one first place—Frank Tedesco's win in the "220"—enough Mosholumen placed to bring the title to Clinton.

At this point, the scourge of the team, graduation, claimed almost half of the team's stars. Thus, in the National Inter-scholastic Meet, only the mile relay foursome and Emil Saporiti, managed to score. In the last indoor meet, the Catholic High Games, they surprised everyone, for in this meet, despite losses through graduation, the unpredictable Red and Black won the Invitation P.S.A.L. Half Mile Relay.

Following an unusually short P.S.A.L. schedule, the outdoor team, under Charles Sanguedolce, competed in the N. Y. Relays on May 3 with great success. The meet was followed by fine performances in the Boys High, Bronx, and City Championship meets.

The squad consisted of: Captains Saporiti and Sanguedolce, Harold Mayes, Frank Bouse, Rudolf Simms, Martin Greenfield, Herman Borowsky, Ralph Lucia, Maurice and Stanton Callender, Bernard Golding, Edward Finch, Clarence Williams, Robert Tannenbaum, John McKeon, John Kurtzer, Eli Epstein, Thomas Clayton, and Cornelius Styres.

TENNIS

TENNIS

Looking forward to their third consecutive city crown, the ever-powerful Red and Black Tennis Team took to the courts with eagerness and confidence.

In a season forerunner regarded as an omen of the future, the Mosholu racquet-wielders scored nine points to win the Taft Interscholastic Tournament. Captain Irv Dorfman won the singles crown, thus retaining his title as the number one racquetteer in the East for the second successive year. The victory established our team as Eastern Scholastic champs. With such a start, it is difficult to see how the netmen can help but take the Bronx and City Championships.

Because Coach Morris Plager was transferred to Taft High last term, mentor Alex Cairnes piloted the team this spring. Besides the aforementioned players, Al Zucker, Mitchell Polstein, Bob Lebolt, Axel Kaufman, Bob Tannenbaum, and Malcolm Mann rounded out the team.

FENCING

It was an inexperienced fencing team that Coach Jacob Silbert launched into the P.S.A.L. competition. This term, although each individual foilsman showed promising—if not outstanding—style, the team as a whole did not turn in a very good record. During a season highlighted by the skill of Co-Captains Irving Swart and Amram Nowak, the swordsmen traded thrusts with Madison, Stuyvesant, Richmond Hill, Seward, and Textile Highs.

FENCING TEAM

GOLF

CRACK! . . . SLAM! . . . Don't be frightened gentlemen—it's not a Panzer division surging up Mosholu Parkway; it's only Clinton's divot diggers hitting the ball straight and true on the golf links.

Composed of veterans Joe Bennett, Dick Wiggs, Rupert Burstan, Mel Geller, Hal Zolkin, Larry Morgenstern, Larry Forman, and Arnold Frank, this term's Golf Team was without a doubt one of the best that Coach Dave Parmet ever assembled. The aspiring Sammy Sneads accredited themselves well against Bayside, Roosevelt, Evander, Washington, Jackson, Richmond Hill, and Flushing, thus fulfilling early season expectations.

GOLF TEAM

HANDBALL TEAM

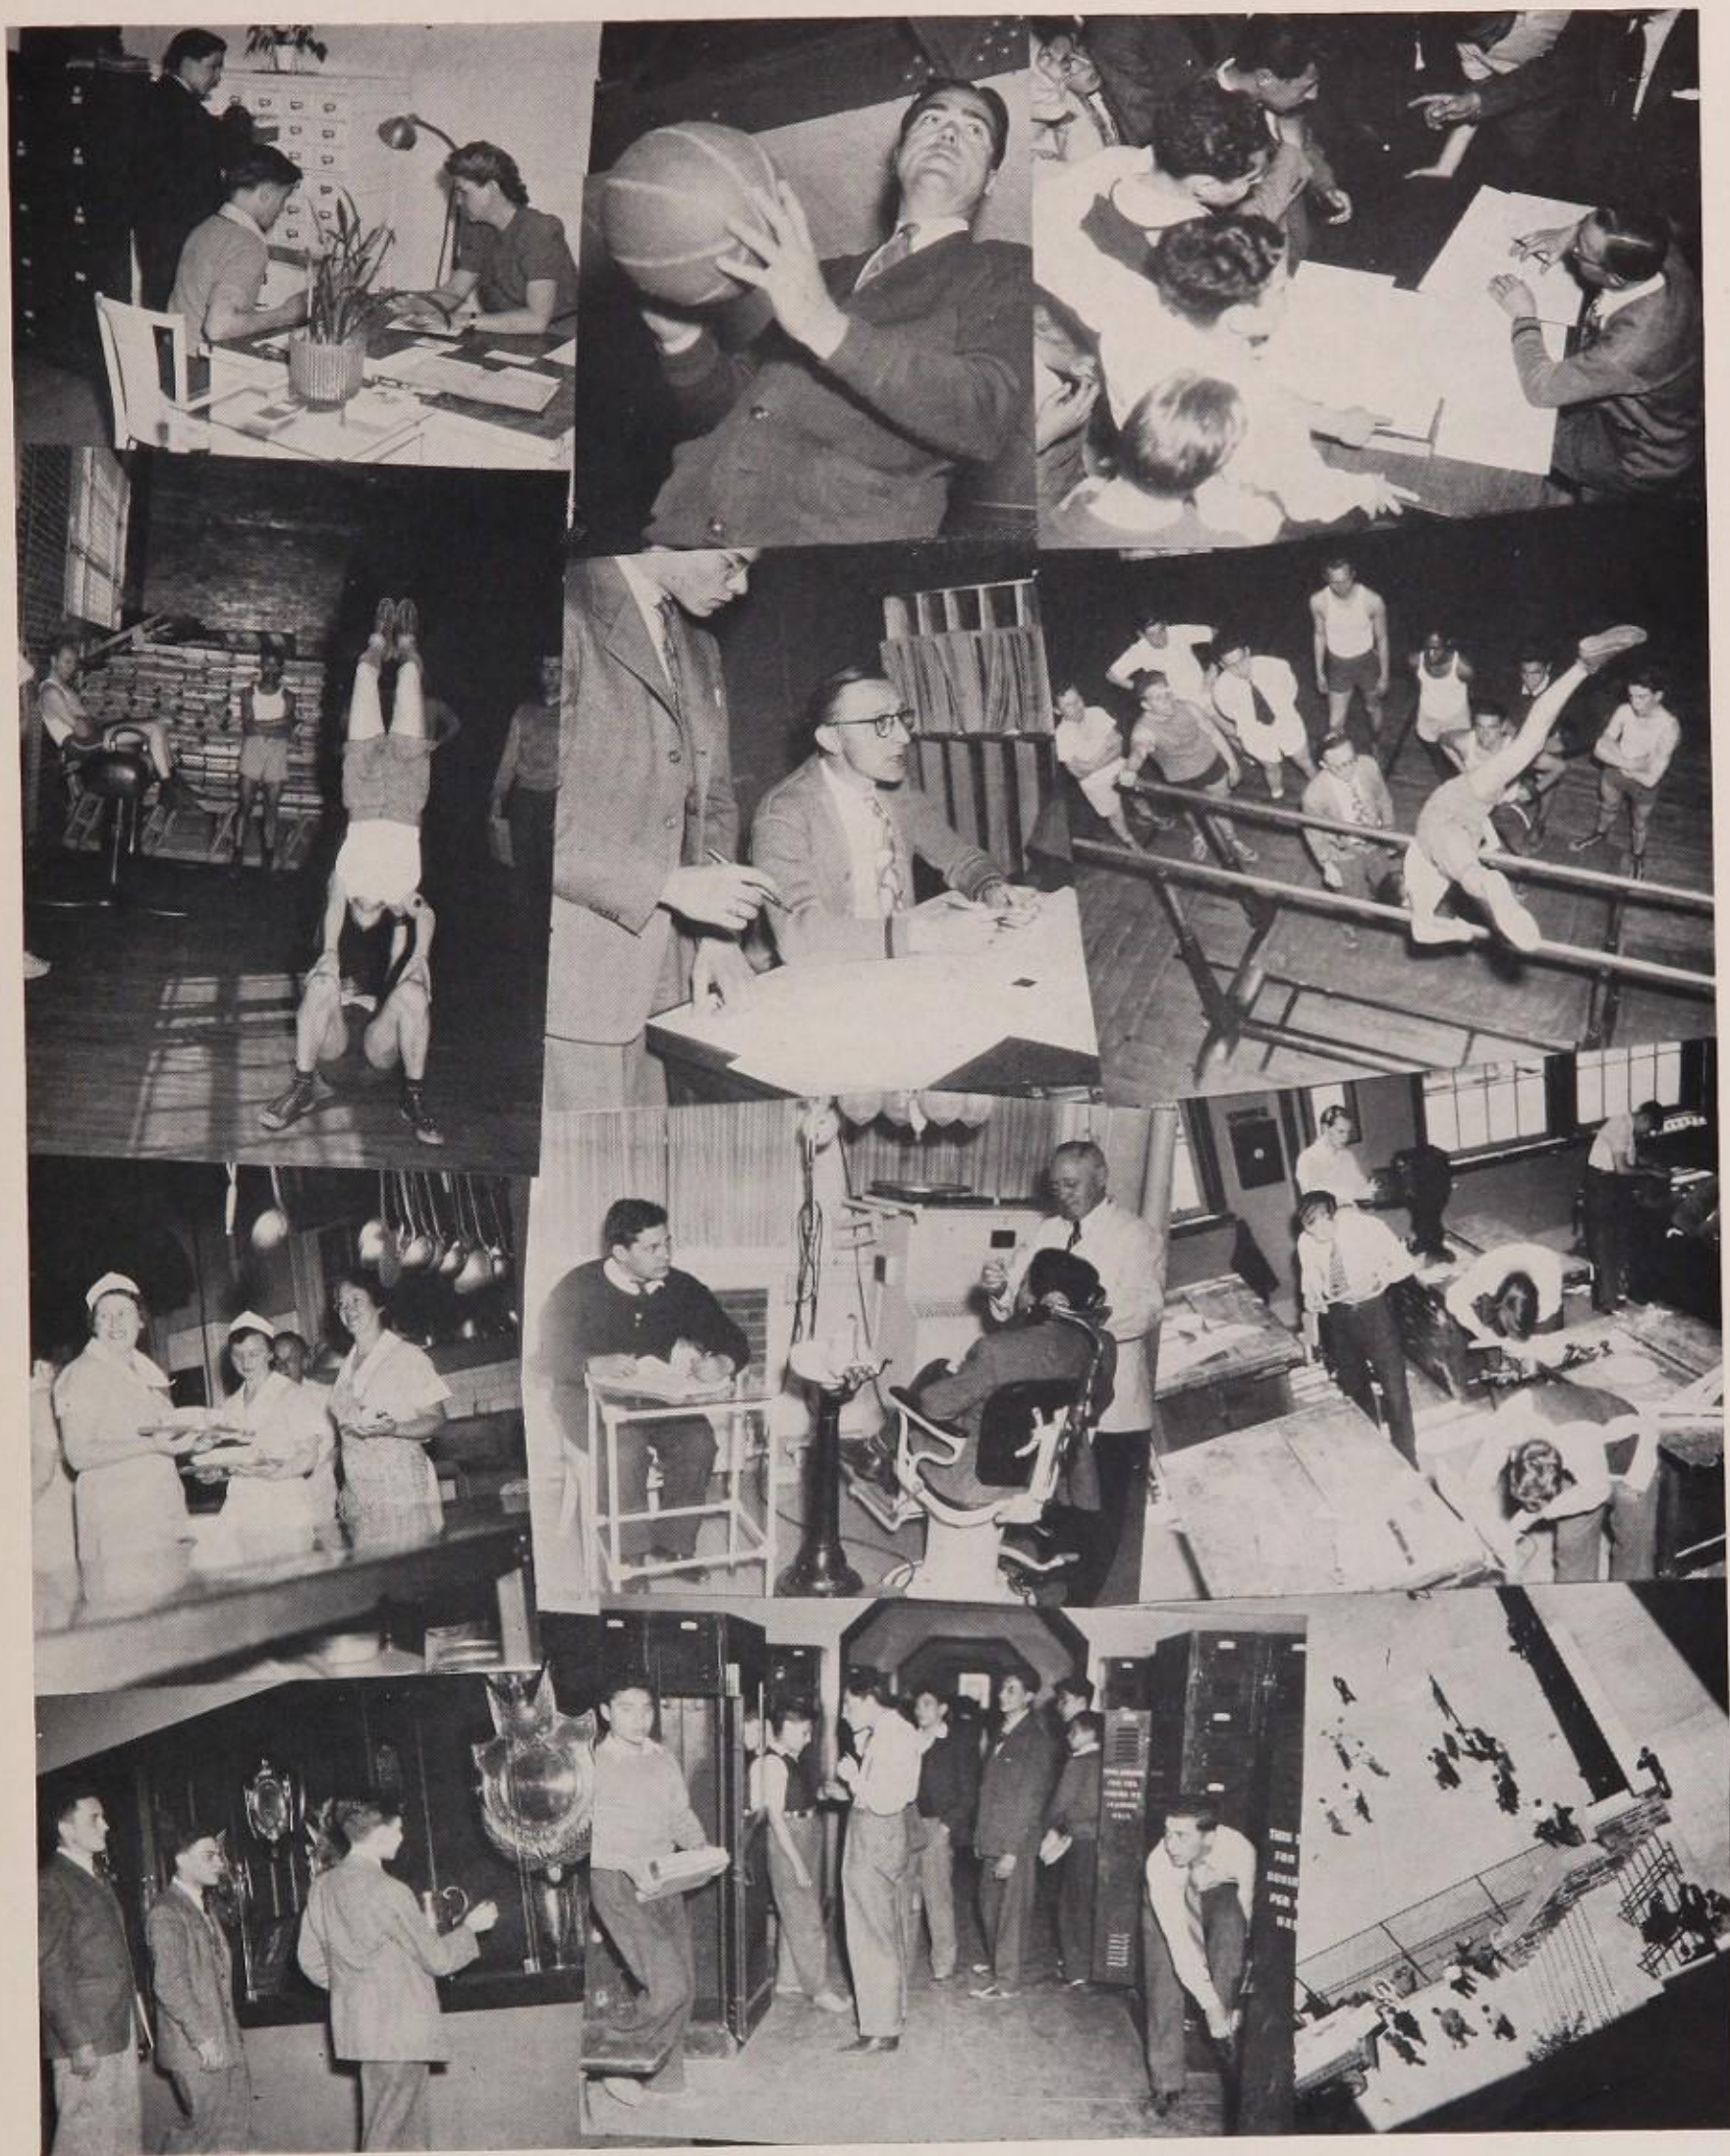

HANDBALL

For the past three years, the excellent quality of Clinton's handballers has been undisputed. The team was good—but not good enough to take the city championship. This year, however, with Co-Captains Mo Barsky and Stan Nelson and with a squad practically intact from last year's team to rely on, Coach Henry Kanter was able to report that prospects for a championship were bright indeed. Besides veterans Walter Reinthaler and "Ace" Reubel, the team had potent material in Milton Friedman, Allan Winthrop, Dick Flechtheim, "Lefty" Matcha, and Aaron Rothman. Displaying brilliant form throughout its schedule, the wallmen could rightfully be called "the City's Finest."

INTRAMURALS

Determined that the average Clintonite be offered the opportunity to participate in some form of athletic competition, the Physical Training Department under the chairmanship of Mr. Edwin Hastings instituted a mammoth intramural program in the spring term of 1941. Tournaments were organized in handball, tennis, basketball, swimming, track, and softball.

The highlight of the program was a three day relay carnival under the auspices of the Wingfoot Club. Smashing victories were turned in by John McGovern in the 70 yard dash, Malcolm Abbott in the 220 yard distance, while Francis Petrucelli took first place in the 880 yard run. The basketball tourney saw the Seventh Form squad sweep all opposition before it. The hard-playing Senior quintette finished second with a record of three wins and one loss. With thirty sections competing, the softball tournament resulted in a deadlock between Sections 605 and 808 for first place honors. Thanks to the kind cooperation of the P.T. Department staff, the Intramural Program proved to be highly successful.

I'D KNOW YOU ANYWHERE

FINALE

You stood on line for two hours to get a hat that you never wore again. You caught a glimpse of your picture proofs and shuddered. The Prom was swell, and you thought Class Nite was a riot . . . You walked down the auditorium aisle clutching that diploma and sighed, "Well, that's that. I'm through."

That's right. Now, you're through . . . No more cramming; no more tests; no more Walton girls. You'll never again dash through the hall whistling "Beat Me Daddy." Forget the Law of Diminishing Returns and that irregular first person of the Subjunctive . . . You're through, finished. There it is—a package of four years tied with a bright red and black ribbon.

If you're the average graduate, you remember little of what you "learned" in Clinton. But, like the average graduate, you've grasped the principles of fair play, good sportsmanship, and most important of all, you've learned how to "get things done"—by good hard work.

Yes, you've had your heartaches. Maybe you didn't make Arista, or maybe that French teacher never ^{did} understand you. But the time you spent in Clinton was spent happily, and you'll ^{never} forget it . . .
